Bee Hotel

Nesting and overwintering

In the first warm, sunny days of spring, bees return to your garden, looking for new places to nest and overwinter. The Gardigo Bee Hotel is a place where they will be comfortable. In spring or summer, place it standing upright or hanging in a sunny spot that is sheltered from rain and close to trees or bushes. Bees are going to find the hotel and build their nest in it. They lay their eggs into the wooden tube and seal them. In spring, young bees hatch and will find their way into the open.

Bees are active starting in April and pollinate fruit trees and strawberry plants. They find food in your garden in bushes and flowers. Bees will overwinter in the bee hotel. It's great fun to watch bees being busy, pursuing their diverse jobs – an amazing experience, particularly for children.
